Death of Mrs. Squire Bowen, Which Occurred Recently.

The death of Mrs. Squire Bowen occurred last week and the funeral was held at Sylvester Bowen's, where she died Sunday, and the interment was at Randolph. Mrs. Bowen had for many years been a resident of this town, coming here in the prosperous days of the Christian church in company with her second husband, Mr. Pratt, at the time when the Rev. Martin Sumner took charge of the church. The death of Mr. Pratt occurred here after a time and afterwards Mrs. Pratt lived alone on Randolph avenue till some fifteen years ago she married Mr. Bowen and went to live with him in his home near the old church. The two were devoted members of the Christian church here and constant attendants as long as strength would permit. Mr. Bowen passed away several years ago at an advanced age, since which time she has been cared for by his children.

IN BOSTON MARKETS.

Eggs Are Easier and Rather Unsettled.

Boston, Feb. 12.—The local butter market is little changed. Receipts continue very light and the little fine fresh creamery stock that appears on the open market finds a ready sale at full quotations. There also is a good firm market for storage butter, with sales of fancy marks at 21c to 22c. Much of the fresh butter that comes forward is wintry and sells at 20c to 21c. The demand for cheese continues moderate, but supplies are light and there is no disposition to cut prices to increase sales. Eggs are easier and rather unsettled. The receipts are not heavy, but they are fully sufficient for the demand. The weakness at outside centers also helps to depress the local market. Quotations follow:

Butter—Creamery, extras, Vermont and New Hampshire, 22 1/2c to 23c; northern New York, 21 1/2c to 22c; western, 20 1/2c to 21c; northern, 20 1/2c to 21c; creamery, best marks, 21 1/2c to 22c; fair to good, 20 1/2c to 21c; creamery extras, 20 1/2c to 21c; firsts, 20 1/2c to 21c; dairy, fancy, 20 1/2c to 21c; common to good, 20 1/2c to 21c; western imitation creamery, 20 1/2c to 21c; western ladies, 20 1/2c to 21c; packing stock, 19 1/2c to 20c; renovated butter, 20 1/2c to 21c; boxes and prints, 20 1/2c to 21c.

Cheese—New York twins, fancy, 15 1/2c to 16c; fair to good, 15 1/2c to 16c; Vermont twins, fancy, 15 1/2c to 16c; fair to good, 15 1/2c to 16c.

Eggs—Fancy, 28c; eastern extras, 26c; common to good, 20 1/2c to 21c; western fancy, 26c; choice, 24c; common to good, 20 1/2c to 21c; refrigerated, 20 1/2c to 21c.

Note.—The above quotations represent prices obtained by receivers for wholesale quantities, and are not jobbing prices.

About Savings Banks

Lamoille County still stands at the head in one thing, certain. Her Savings Bank at Hyde Park, with ex-Gov. Page at the helm, is fast increasing her list of depositors, and now pays four per cent. compounded semi-annually on all deposits.

Money deposited there up to February 15th draws interest from January 1st, and the strength of the institution is proving an attraction to many who are looking for a safe place for investing their earnings.

As governor, Page gave Vermont a good administration: as buyer and seller of calf skins he is world-renowned; and as bank president, well, he has gotten out a leaflet which is free for the asking and which tells a lot about the institution. Get it.

At the state agricultural meeting to be held here on February 20 many are expected from out of town who will avail themselves of the privilege of listening to the distinguished speakers present. The program will serve a banquet from 5 o'clock to which all are invited to be present.

At the meeting of the Christian Brotherhood on Sunday night held in the parish house, there were twenty-two present to participate in the social hour and enjoy the supper served to them in the dining room. The paper for the evening was by Dr. Angell on the White Plague and was appreciated by the audience present.

Dr. Liguori left here Tuesday morning after staying Monday night with Elmer Bean. The condition of Mr. Bean is as favorable as could be expected, considering the seriousness of the case. It being much more complicated than many and known as the rapid type of the disease, Mrs. Bean will remain in the guest of her sister, Mrs. Liguori, during Mr. Bean's stay at the sanatorium.

Foreman; adjutant, Orville Boyles; quartermaster, Francis Knapp; chaplain, E. D. Waldie; secretary, George H. Myers; guard, Orin Rogers. At the close of the meeting they were quite surprised to find the W. B. C. had taken possession of their kitchen and from well filled baskets and boxes had furnished simple refreshments. A pleasant surprise was met with when the W. B. C. had a few well chosen words expressed thanks and appreciation of the kindness of the Corps in remembering them, since they were unable on account of sickness in their families to attend their officers at the same time as the W. B. C.

ETHICS OF UNIONISM.

Too Often Overlooked by the Membership.

TEACH HIGHER PRINCIPLES.

The Personal Equation a Serious Drawback to the Trades Union Movement—A Truer Conception of Duty Will Make For Progress.

The Bricklayer and Mason talks to the point when it says that internal dissensions and jealousies seriously interfere with the progress of unionism. Not until the membership practices the virtue of unselfishness and eliminates its petty personal prejudices can the labor movement achieve the success that the justice of its cause deserves. Here is what the Bricklayer and Mason says on the subject:

One of the great drawbacks to the advancement of the trades union movement and one that brings it into contempt so often with the public generally and gives ammunition to those who are continually seeking the downfall of organized labor is the fact that in its affairs there is such a constant question of authority and discipline and so much lukewarm among the individual members. The trouble seems to be owing to so much jealousy and selfishness being injected into union affairs, and these two causes, we believe, are responsible for many of the unpleasant conditions that so many unions and executive committees of our international union are confronted with.

We can safely assert, without fear of contradiction, that opposition based on personal animosity simply goes on and on until the unions and individuals thereof opposing each other can see no good whatever in any measure that may be introduced, and usually conditions become such that the chain of brotherhood, which should bind all together, is broken in two, and, no matter what the other fellow or union suggests, whether there is merit in it or not, it is knocked on general principles just to get back at Brother So-and-so, who in turn does his knocking when the opportunity presents itself, and there you are. Truly it is a pitiable condition.

We want bigger hearts, bigger and broader minds and a truer conception of our duty toward one another. The ethics of our movement, which, we regret to say, are very often overlooked, teach higher principles. We are each under a moral obligation to secure for ourselves and posterity the greatest of blessings and happiness that it is possible to attain in this world, to be kinder and more tolerant of one another, to agree to disagree and to recognize and support even those whom we may consider our bitterest enemies in the views and measures which they may present for the advancement of our cause, when we can clearly see merit in them. In place of that blind, selfish spirit that knocks just for the sake of knocking and for fear the other fellow will reap some advantage or glory.

In the trades union movement there is glory enough for all. If we would be up and doing, we must get rid of our personal prejudices and keep down that overabundance of selfishness with which we are all more or less endowed. Let us each be constructive and not sit idly back waiting to pounce on the other fellow because he may (in our opinion) be a little too active and trying to lord it over the others, as it were. It may be that it is only his way and that after all the interest of the unions generally is what is uppermost in his mind.

UNIVERSAL PEACE.

War Will End When Organized Labor Refuses to Fight.

"The abolition of the labor union will not solve the labor question," declared Rev. Charles Steale, member of the Machinists' union and official representative to the labor classes for the Presbyterian church, at a recent Sunday meeting for men held at the Belasco theater, Washington, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

"Most workmen are too close to the labor problem to understand it, and this is true also of the employers, and the workmen undoubtedly understand the economic side of the question better than does his employer."

"Abolish the labor union," said Mr. Steale, "and what will you have in its stead? The problem of 24,000,000 soldiers, 8,000,000 of whom have voted for a presidential candidate, will face you; 8,000,000 men who now compose the trades unions will have to be dealt with, not considering the laboring classes of Russia, Germany, France, Italy and other countries. The labor union has come to stay, and the question is whether it shall be a good or a bad unionism."

"Organized labor stands for four great things—the abolition of child labor, equal remuneration to women for equal work, sanitary conditions in shops and tenements and the Americanization of the alien."

"I began my life in a New York east side tenement and when I was eight years old began work in a sweatshop. My mother made wrappers at $2 a dozen, and it took her three days and three nights to earn that $2. My four sisters shared during their early childhood, and nothing I may accomplish in this life for them can offset the terrible experiences of those years when I and my family were poorer than any man here."

"Three millions of dollars were expended on the recent Hague peace conference, and among other things, we have been assured that international correspondence will hereafter be conducted in the most polite language, which I know will be a comfort to the dead soldier and his widow."

"But universal peace will be established only when organized labor will rise and declare a general strike, refusing to fight their fellow men at the behest of monarchs and monopolies."

NOAH'S RAVENS.

A Knotty Question Answered by a Blacksmith Preacher.

Many years ago there lived in one of the mountain counties of Tennessee a blacksmith who to his reputation for honest work during the week added that of being a powerful exponent on Sundays. Held in high esteem by his neighbors, possessed of a sufficiency of this world's goods for that primitive community, he seemed to have solved the question of terrestrial happiness, but the "thorn in the flesh" is indelible to all climes and conditions, and for the blacksmith it grew in the person of one Tom Bradley, a tall, lank mountaineer, who was the wit and wag of the neighborhood and who also occupied the unenviable position of skeptic in that orthodox community.

Tom delighted to prod the smith with certain inexplicable Biblical statements, and these encounters sometimes resulted disastrously for the exhorter, causing him much humiliation and making him, as he said, "wrasse in prayer and cry to the Lord and spare not."

Once at the yearly camp meeting the old man was giving his "experience" in the tone and manner that were considered devotional in those parts. "My brethren, ah," he said, "as I was a-standin' in my shop an' gittin' ready to shoe Billy Hite's old gray mare, ah, 'long come that son of a gun Tom Bradley, ah. He ast me ef I believed everything in the Bible, ah. I said everything from kiver to kiver, ah. 'Well, sezze, ah, 'ef that raven Noah sent out got lost, ah, where did all those here ravens come from, ah? Brethren, I thought fer a minute, ah, that old Satan had got the underhand on me, ah, an' was about to toe me, ah; but, thank the Lord, ah, I jest thot back my head, ah, an' the sperrit of knowledge plum filled me, ah, an' I
